RANIA A. AL-MASHAT is an international expert in economic diplomacy, bringing over 25 years of experience in macroeconomic policy; central banking and monetary policy frameworks, sustainable economic and social development; structural and institutional reform, development cooperation, development and climate finance, driving climate action and gender equality through international cooperation and partnerships. An Egyptian national, who served for eight consecutive years (2018-2026) as Minister across three key portfolios: Tourism (first female), International Cooperation, and Planning, Economic Development & International Cooperation.

Before her ministerial positions, Ms. Al-Mashat served as Sub-Governor for Monetary Policy at the Central Bank of Egypt (2005-2016), where she played a key role in modernizing the bank's monetary policy strategy. Her experience also includes working as Advisor to the Chief Economist and Senior Economist at the International Monetary Fund (IMF) in Washington, D.C (2016-2018, 2001-2005). She has been a board member and advisory member of several international alliances, as well as international financial and development institutions.

Ms. Al-Mashat has operated at the intersection of policy, finance, international and development cooperation and had to manage complex domestic and geopolitical dynamics that influence institutional strategy and execution, while safeguarding predictability and credibility; all while leading institutions during times of change. A strong advocate of multilateralism, she has advanced partnership-driven national and global initiatives, and championed innovative approaches to international cooperation and development finance through country-led multi-stakeholder engagement frameworks. Her academic contributions, including publications with the IMF and the London School of Economics, reflect her commitment to bridging policy, research, and practice.

Ms. Al-Mashat is the recipient of numerous international and domestic awards, including the 2025 African Renaissance Leadership Award; the 2025 Global Leadership Award from the Choiseul Institute; the 2025 Africa Political Outlook Prize for Leadership, Governance and Impact; the 2022 Most Visionary and Outstanding Minister of International Cooperation in Africa, awarded by the Elliott School of International Affairs at George Washington University and the GE7 Initiative; the Choiseul Institute's 100 Africa: Economic Leaders for Tomorrow (2014 and 2015); and the World Economic Forum's Young Global Leaders (2014). She was also listed among the 50 most influential women in the Egyptian economy in 2015 and 2020.

Ms. Al-Mashat holds a PhD and MA in Economics from the University of Maryland, College Park, USA, and a BA in Economics from the American University in Cairo, Egypt. She has completed executive education programs in Leadership and Public Policy from the Harvard Kennedy School, USA and Transformational Leadership from Oxford University's Saïd Business School, United Kingdom.